The crack definitely looks like the material is glass. But I'm pretty sure the bottom bar below the MacBook display is metal, it feels different. I could be wrong. It doesn't really matter what material it is, I'm just wanting to fix it. I hope it's a fixable thing and not a whole-display replacement which costs easily $600-800+

In a tiled shower, removing the pan is easier, since the pan is caulked into place at the bottom edge of the tiling. There is no overlapping fiberglass wall to impede the removal of the pan. Simply cut the caulking and drain pipe to remove the shower pan. Break and remove tiling around the edges of the pan if it prevents removal.
